Dear Reader,

In the academic year 2010/11 the Institute of East Asian Studies (IN-EAST) experienced both challenges and successes. The recruitment of several new Professors strengthened the Institute's profile and research activities, and the re-accreditation of our existing study programs as well as the initial accreditation of new study programs commencing in October 2011 confirmed our status as a major centre for teaching on East Asia.

The traumatic events in Japan in many ways gained a strong presence in our work. The triple disaster, earthquake, tsunami and the melt-down of the Fukushima nuclear power reactors posed the worst crisis in Japan since the end of WWII. Our students, former and present staff staying in Japan at the time of the events were safe and continue with their work – though in some cases research agendas had to be altered.

IN-EAST is proud to report the successful recruitment of Prof. Flemming Christiansen Ph.D. to join the institute as Chair of the Political Sociology of China in the Faculty of Social Sciences. Prof. Christiansen is an internationally renowned scholar of Chinese society and politics.

Returning from a research leave as Max Weber Fellow at the European University Institute in Florence, Prof. Kristin Surak joined the institute as an Assistant Professor in the field of Comparative Sociology / Japan. Her current research focuses on migration policies and migration patterns in East Asia.

We were also pleased to welcome Prof. Richard Edmonds (University of Chicago) as Guest Professor for East Asian Culture and History, PD Dr. Sierk Horn (University of Leeds) as Acting Professor for Business and Economic Studies and PD Dr. Axel Klein as Acting Professor for Modern East Asian Studies. Students at IN-EAST benefitted greatly from Prof. Edmond's long expertise in research about China's environmental geography and history. Prof. Horn provided valuable assistance for the design of a new post-doc program, which, pending funding, we intend to implement in the future. Prof. Klein turned his efforts to the commencement of our new BA program and the myriad challenges arising out of the start of such a program.

We had the privilege to welcome four internationally renowned scientists as visiting scholars, all of whom have made strong contributions to our research and qualification activities: Prof. Dr. Ulrike Schaede from the University of California, San Diego, USA, Dr. Myongduk Ko, Senior Research Fellow of the Institute for National Security Strategy (INSS) in Seoul, Republic of Korea, Prof. Dong Wang, Professor of Contemporary Chinese History and Director of the Centre for East Asian Studies at the University of Turku, Finland and Prof. John Creighton Campbell Ph.D., emeritus of the University of Michigan, Ann-Arbor, USA. It was a particular honour that the Rector appointed Prof. Campbell Scientist in Residence of the University of Duisburg-Essen in 2011. Some of his activities in our Research Training Group Risk and East Asia are reported in this issue. His other contributions will be highlighted in the next Institute Report.

Prof. Yu Keping, Honorary Professor of the Faculty of Social Sciences since 2008 and a frequent guest at our institute has been ranked 19 in the Top 100 Global Thinkers by the renowned journal Foreign Policy in 2011 for his contributions to debates on democracy in China. We congratulate Prof. Yu Keping!

Our course offerings for students in our East Asian degree programs have in 2011 for the first time included the whole range from Bachelor to a structured PhD program. We are pleased to announce that in the first semester more than 50 Bachelor students and 20 MA students from over a dozen countries after a rigorous selection procedure joined our unique programs to study the East Asian region, the theories and methodologies of their disciplines, and of course the Chinese and Japanese languages. The academic year 2010/11 also saw the start of a new "Hello and Good-bye" ceremony, to welcome new students and part with graduates heading for new responsibilities in business, politics and society.

With the new academic year already underway we look forward to further strengthening and consolidating our research and qualification activities and to contributing to a better understanding of East Asia in our society.

SPOTLIGHT IM BLICKPUNKT

Graduates' Ceremony Absolventenfeier "Hello und Good-bye", October 21, 2010

In einem würdigen Rahmen die Absolventen zu ehren und die neuen Studierenden zu begrüßen ist das Ziel von „Hello und Good-bye“. Zum Abschluss des akademischen Jahres 2009/2010 veranstaltete das IN-EAST im Gerhard-Mercator-Haus zum ersten Mal eine Absolventenfeier, bei der in feierlichem Rahmen die Absolventen verabschiedet und die Abschlusszeugnisse überreicht wurden sowie gleichzeitig die neuen Studierenden begrüßt wurden.

Nach der Begrüßung aller Teilnehmer durch den Direktor des IN-EAST, Prof. Dr. Werner Pascha, wurden von Prof. Dr. Markus Taube die neuen MA-Studierenden vorgestellt. Die 17 neuen Studierenden wurden in einem zweistufigen Verfahren aus über 80 Bewerbern ausgewählt. Mit Studierenden aus Deutschland (4), Russland (4), der VR China (3), Indonesien (2); Taiwan, Litauen, Polen und den USA (je 1) hat sich der Master Contemporary East Asian Studies als sehr internationaler Studiengang etabliert.

Im Anschluss wurden die neuen Erasmus-Austauschstudierenden (lot14-Projekt) aus China Gao Xiaohan, Wang Wei und Zhong Zhun vorgestellt, die für 5 Monate in Duisburg studieren, nachdem im Sommer 2010 bereits drei Studierende des IN-EAST und die GK 1613-Koordinatorin im Rahmen des lot14-Projektes zu Forschungsaufenthalten in China gewesen waren.

Prof. Karen Shire, Ph.D. führte dann in die Arbeit des DFG-Graduiertenkollegs Risk and East Asia ein und begrüßte die neu ernannten Studenten Stephanie Bräuer, Claus Corves, Iva Ognjanovic, Ann-Kathrin Prior und Hans-Christian Schnack, die alle ein Promotionsstipendium aus DFG-Mitteln erhalten.

Besonders erfreulich ist, dass durch die von der Duisburger Universitäts-Gesellschaft D.U.G. und AlFreDO gesponsorten NRW-Stipendien nun hoch qualifizierte Studierende mit einem Stipendium gefördert werden können. Die Stipendien für das Akademische Jahr 2010/11 wurden an Sebastian Anouar Azza, Alexandra Davydova und Henning Windhagen verliehen.

Im zweiten Teil der Veranstaltung wurden die Absolventinnen und Absolventen der Ostasienstudienprogramme durch den Vorsitzenden des Prüfungsausschusses Prof. Dr. Werner Pascha geehrt. Er überreichte den anwesenden Absolventen ihre Zeugnisse und Urkunden. Ihnen allen gratulieren das IN-

EAST und seine Mitarbeiter zum erfolgreichen Abschluss und wünschen alles Gute für den weiteren Berufsweg!

Einen weiteren Höhepunkt bildete die Verleihung des Studienpreises der Alumni und Freunde der Duisburger Ostasienstudien für die beste Abschlussarbeit. In diesem Jahr ging der Preis an Christoph Tobias Brauer für seine Diplomarbeit Die Standortdynamik japanischer Convenience Stores – dargestellt am Beispiel Tokyo. Die Laudatio hielt sein Betreuer Prof. Dr. Winfried Flüchter, den Preis überreichte der Vorsitzende von AlFreDO Dirk Petzold. Der Preisträger selbst, inzwischen beruflich in Tokyo, war über Videokonferenz zugeschaltet.

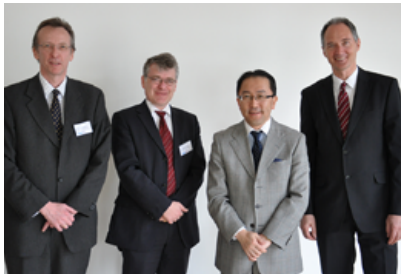

Stellvertretend für alle Absolventen sprach Christian Hüttenhein und dankte dem IN-EAST und seinen Lehrenden für die gute Ausbildung. Mit einem Sektempfangklang die Veranstaltung aus. Musikalisch untermalt wurde die Veranstaltung durch festlich gekleidete Koto-Spielerinnen.

EastAsiaNet Spring Workshop 2011, April 14–16, 2011

In April 2011, for the second time the EastAsiaNet workshop was held in Duisburg. EastAsiaNet is a network of leading university-related research schools active in social science-oriented studies of East Asia. The network was founded in 2006, based on an IN-EAST initiative, and now encompasses, apart from IN-EAST, institutes in Austria, Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, and UK. After the 2006 workshop in Duisburg, the network met twice a year, meeting in the member institutes in turn. With Duisburg hosting the workshop again in early 2011, one “round” among members has come to a conclusion. Fortunately, the Consul General of Japan in Düsseldorf, Mr. Koinumi, and the Rector of the University of Duisburg-Essen, gave EastAsiaNet the honour of opening the workshop and celebrating with the members. This time, the topics of the scholarly discussions were related to “Methods of Studying Risk in an East Asian and Intercultural Context” and “Overcoming the Divide: Issues and Cases of East Asia-related Research between Contemporary Issues, Approaches from the Humanities, and Disciplinary Demands of the Social Sciences”. Apart from cooperation in research, the network is also engaged in teaching exchange. Several representatives from member institutes have visited each other already and delivered courses. Students as well have the opportunity to study through an Erasmus scheme.

Birgit Apitzsch was awarded the Max Weber Fellowship for post-doctoral research at the European University Institute, Florence.

Birgit Apitzsch: Verleihung des Sparkassenpreises für herausragende Dissertationen der Universität Duisburg-Essen 2010 (2000 €).

Birgit Apitzsch was nominated by the University of Duisburg-Essen for the “Young Scholars College” of the North Rhine-Westfalian Academy of Science.

Diego Compagna was awarded the Scholars in Residence, a joint scholarly exchange program of the Kulturwissenschaftliches Institut Essen (KWI) and the Goethe-Institut, and traveled in February and March 2011 as Guest Scholar to the Institute of Bioethics at the Universidad Javeriana in Bogotá, Columbia.

Diego Compagna was Guest Lecturer as part of the DAAD/EU program for encouraging mobility (Erasmus/Sokrates) at the Faculty of Sciences and Technology of the Universidade Nova de Lisboa.

Thomas Heberer has been appointed member of the Editorial Board of the journal “The China Quarterly” in August 2011.

Thomas Heberer was provided with a research grant by Taiwan’s Ministry of Education and invited by Taiwan National University to conduct field research in Taiwan on the topic “Transformation of Taiwan’s agriculture” in October 2010.

Hong Ya-yun’s master thesis “Cong hongse chongjing dao tianye xianshi. Thomas Heberer yu Deguo Zhongguo yanjiu” (From revolutionary utopia to the reality of field work. Thomas Heberer and the Transformation of Germany’s China Studies), published by the School of Political Science at Taiwan’s National Sun Yat-sen University, Kaohsiung (2011) dwells with the role of Thomas Heberer in shaping Germany’s modern China studies.

Chun-Yi Lee was provided with a ESRC Standard Research Grant (RES-062-23-2777, £ 275,000) “Globalisation, National Transformation and Workers’ Rights: An Analysis of Chinese Labour within the Global Economy". Project submitted in collaboration with Prof. Andreas Bieler at the School of Politics and International Relations, University of Nottingham.

Werner Pascha had a sabbatical during the summer term of 2011. In particular, from May 28 to July 16, 2011 he was a visiting scholar at the Faculty of Economics and the Life-Risk Research Center of Doshisha University in Kyoto, Japan. There he focused on performing an experiment on corruption attitude in Japan. The stay was financed by an invitation fellowship of the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS).

Werner Pascha has been appointed a jury member to award the first prize for younger scholars of the German Association for Social Science Research on Japan (VSJF).

Werner Pascha has taken on the task as Co-Editor in Chief of the Asia Europe Journal, published by Springer – the other Co-Editor in Chief is Dr. Yeo Lay Hwee (Director, European Union Centre and Senior Research Fellow, Singapore Institute of International Affairs) – in June 2011.

The Asia Europe Journal was accepted for Social Sciences Citation Index in 2010. The Journal was launched in 2003 by the Asia-Europe Foundation as one of the Foundation's flagship projects – a quarterly journal devoted to publishing interdisciplinary and intercultural studies and research on Asia and Europe. From the very start, Springer Verlag Heidelberg has been the publishing partner. After having financially supported the seed period, the Asia-Europe Foundation has now decided to sell the exclusive rights of the Journal to Springer.

Springer is relaunching the Asia Europe Journal in 2011 as a quarterly journal dedicated to publishing quality academic papers as well as policy discussions on common challenges facing Asia and Europe that help to shape narratives on the common futures – including both risks and opportunities – of Asia and Europe.

The Journal welcomes academically and intellectually rigorous research papers as well as topical policy briefs and thought pieces on issues of bi-regional interest, including management and political economy, innovation, security studies, regional and global governance, reaching out to relevant socio-cultural developments and historical experiences.

Anja Senz wurde für ihre Dissertation „Wer bestimmt in Chinas Dörfern? Lokale Entscheidungsstrukturen und institutioneller Wandel in der VR China“ mit dem Preis für die beste sozialwissenschaftliche Dissertation der Universität Duisburg-Essen und mit dem ersten Preis des „Dissertationspreises Kulturwissenschaften 2011“ ausgezeichnet, den der Förderverein des Kulturwissenschaftlichen Instituts Essen (KWI) jährlich vergibt.

Karen Shire was elected Chair of the Advisory Board of the German Institute for Japanese Studies (DIJ) in Tokyo.

Visiting Scholars Gastwissenschaftler

Prof. Jong-Hwan Ko of Pukyong National University, Busan, Republic of Korea, spent the academic year 2010/11 at IN-EAST as a guest professor, invited by Prof. Werner Pascha, and financed through a scholarship of the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD). He gave lectures on the Korean economy and international economic relations of East Asia, particularly with respect to Korea. He introduced students to quantitative techniques to study such trade flows. Prof. Ko is a noted expert on such models which are used in the Global Trade Analysis Project (GTAP), ultimately based on the computable general equilibrium concept.

Prof. Dr. Tao Lei, Institute of Sociology, Beijing Academy of Social Sciences (May 2011)

Prof. John Creighton Campbell Ph.D. (June–July 2011)

Prof. Dr. Ulrike Schaede, University of California San Diego (June–July 2011)

Geo-Risk-Space and Risk Society Japan: The Eastern Japan Great Earthquake Disaster 2011 and the Options of a Risk Society

Current project

Hazard research has concentrated too much on the analysis of so-called natural disasters, on the understanding of nature and the dangers resulting from this, and too little on man-made hazards, which people themselves initiate by weighing risks and trying to defuse these through hazard management. The Geo-Risk-Space and the Risk Society Japan serve as an excellent case for addressing the shortcomings of much natural hazard research by alternatively pointing to how humans attempt to bring nature under their control, with the belief that the more developed the technology, the better our control. The effect, however, is heightened vulnerability. As the Eastern Japan Great Earthquake Disaster (Higashi Nihon Daishinsai) of 2011 exemplifies, this can lead to a disastrous chain reaction, to a three-fold catastrophe – earthquake, tsunami and nuclear crisis. The research project analyzes Japan's seismic warning system, disaster prevention and emergency measures. Emphasis is put on the options of a risk society, how to deal with the problem of Restrisiko by making use of a flexible conflict economy. The man-made nuclear accident at Fukushima is seen as a focus of systemic weakness – and gives reason to the question if it serves as a catalyst of institutional change.

Growth and Shrinkage in East and South-East Asia. Challenges of Demographic Change against the background of the 'Flying Geese' Model? Japan as a Trendsetter of New Urban Developments?

Current project

The 'flying geese' model of industrial development conceived by the Japanese economist Kaname Akamatsu in the 1930's became a much discussed approach for the explanation of economic catching-up processes of the countries of East and South-East Asia – in the context of a strong globalisation of the Japanese economy since the late 1980's. The rapid demographic change in the states and territories of East and South-East Asia, particularly population shrinking and ageing, is seen and evaluated against the background of this model. The concept of Japan as the 'leading goose' of an Asian-Pacific 'flying geese formation' is challenged not only with regard to economic but also to demographic and urban catching-up processes.

Politics and Autonomy in the Local State – County and Township Cadres as Strategic Actors in the Chinese Reform Process

Funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG), 4/2008–12/2012

Any substantial assessment of China's state capacity cannot be undertaken without a careful analysis of the local state. County and township cadres are of utmost importance here – a fact which has rarely been researched so far. They have a high degree of autonomy vis-à-vis the central state and are the decisive actors concerning the implementation of China's agricultural policies and the government's efforts to reform the system of rural finance. It is the local cadres who decide about the central state's success to maintain social stability and regime loyalty among China's peasants. What kind of rationality do local cadres follow when they carry out central policies? To what extent do they develop a collective identity that makes them a self-conscious strategic group in China's political system, and how does this impact on state capacity and regime legitimacy? The project intends to find answers to this question by a systematic analysis of the implementation of the "Construction of a new countryside" comparing different counties and townships. By that, it makes an important contribution to the understanding of political development in contemporary China. The project has been extended by the DFG until the end of 2012.

Thomas Heberer (with Prof. Dr. Dieter Grunow, Institute of Political Science)

Administrative Reform in Germany and China: Decentralized Policies in the Domain of Environmental Policies: Rural Areas

Funded by the Haniel Foundation, 2008–2012

This project intends to scrutinize local administrative acting (or non-acting) in the domain of environmental issues. A comparison with German policies shall facilitate to learn from the experiences of an advanced country and its underlying concepts. Three case studies in Shandong (Shouguang county), Zhejiang (Deqing county) and Jiangxi Province (Nanfeng county) had been conducted in 2009. Four core issues of environmental policies were examined:

- a) Environmental policies of various governmental echelons (local, province, centre) and their implementation.
- b) The role and acting of various players (various levels of government and party administration, enterprises, environment organizations (NGOs), the media, citizens, international leverage, etc.).
- c) Conflicts and conflict management.
- d) Elaboration of environment-oriented development strategies: The objective is to elaborate a collection of policy papers and a proposal concerning the implementation and diffusion of an effective environmental policy in the sense of policy learning.

A book publication in Chinese and a special issue of the Journal "Journal of Current Chinese Affairs" are in print.

Local Governance in China: Local Cadres as Strategic Groups, Policy Innovation and Policy Experimenting

Funded by the Federal Ministry of Education and Research (BMBF) and in cooperation with Prof. B. Alpermann (Würzburg), Prof. S. Heilmann (Trier) and Prof. H. Holbig (Hamburg), 2010–2014

This project is part of the Competence Network "Governance in China: Prerequisites, Constraints and Potentials for Political Adaptation and Innovation Capacity in the 21st Century"

The increase in influence of non-democratic political systems, especially of the Peoples Republic of China, poses a central challenge to politics, political consulting and scientific research. The capability of authoritarian regimes for adaptation and innovation has only sporadically been examined by the social sciences so far.

The Research Network 'Governance in China' aims at researching prerequisites, achievements and constraints of the adaptive and innovative capacity of institutions, processes and policies as part of the governance in China. For this aim it uses an innovative set of networks and connections to other social and regional studies.

This research program is on the one hand based on completed studies of the network participants at the Universities of Duisburg-Essen, Trier, Tübingen, Würzburg and the German Institute of Global and Area Studies (GIGA) in Hamburg and also affiliates current projects. On the other hand new sub-projects are added which will deepen knowledge regarding specific issues within the overarching topic 'Governance in China'. The Research Network profits from its manifold international contacts. This research cooperation of China studies and political science in Germany builds on existing structures like the Association for Social Science Research on China (ASC) of the German Association for Asian Studies. Key features of the concept are: training of doctoral and post-doc students, organization and participation of international conferences and workshops, participation in field research especially of young scholars, and invitation of guest researchers. This should promote the goal of making German research on China more visible internationally.

The subproject conducted by Gunter Schubert and Thomas Heberer follows a comparative research project conducted by Thomas Heberer and Gunter Schubert since 2008. The focus of this project has been the role of county and township cadres in “Building a New Socialist Countryside” (a government program that promotes comprehensive local development). The subproject aims at a successive deepening of knowledge on local political processes in rural China by means of comparative research over a prolonged stretch of time. Research fellows in the project are Susanne Löhr and René Trappel.

The project inquires into political deliberation and strategic action of leading county and township cadres in China by means of empirical policy research (particularly rural development policies, policy innovation, policy learning and policy experimenting).

County and township cadres are of utmost importance in the Chinese transformation process – a fact which has rarely been researched so far. It is the local cadres who decide about the central state’s success to maintain social stability and regime loyalty among China’s peasants. What kind of rationality do local cadres follow when they carry out central policies? What are their concrete strategies and why do they choose exactly these? Do they act in coordination? And which (measurable) impact does their action have on state capacity and regime legitimacy in rural China? By systematically comparing local policy implementation, policy innovation and policy experimenting in different counties and townships the subproject aims at answering these questions. Furthermore, it intends to contribute to an understanding of the political development in contemporary China, particularly with regard to the adaptability of the political system facing new social challenges. Policy innovations and policy learning by local leading cadres play a prominent role here. Field research by Thomas Heberer within this project was conducted in Jiangyin county (Jiangsu Province) and Shiquan county (Shaanxi Province) in 2011.

Decoupling and Sources of Structural Transformation of East Asian Economies: An Input-Output Structural Decomposition Analysis

Own sources, DAAD (in 2010–11), 2010–2012

This study aims to answer two questions: 1) Have East Asian economies decoupled? 2) What are the sources of structural transformation of East Asian economies related to the first question? We use so-called input-output structural decomposition analysis by which the sources of structural changes in net output value by sector of East Asian economies can be identified. The sources of the shifts between 1990 and 2000 can be ascribed to changes in technology, domestic final demand, and foreign trade and the magnitude of each factor of the sources is quantified. We make use of Asian International Input-Output Tables for 1990 and 2000 (IDE-JETRO, Asian International Input-Output Table 1990, 1998, and Asian International Input-Output Table 2000, 2006).

Japanese Coal Miners in the Ruhr Industrial District

Supported by: Involved institutes and DJG during the initial phase, 2010–2012

From 1957 to 1965, some 436 miners from Japan worked in the Ruhr area in coal mining under a bilateral governmental agreement. After the end of the program, some of them stayed in Germany and started a family. While the role of Japanese businessmen in the enterprises of Düsseldorf is quite well known, this episode involving more “ordinary” individuals and encounters between Japanese and German citizens is very little known. To prepare for the 2011 celebrations of 150 years of German-Japanese trade relations, the project hopes to shed new light on this, by interviewing contemporary witnesses and by collecting data from local newspapers and other sources.

Supporting Modern Korean Studies through the Strategic Initiative for Korean Studies

Funded by the Academy of Korean Studies, 2008–2011

A small series of workshops and books are planned to promote contemporary Korean studies and in particular to strengthen the European voice. A first one-day conference was held: “Towards a Northeast Asian Security Community: Implications for Korea’s Growth and Economic Development”, at the Korea Economic Institute, Washington D.C., October 15, 2008, co-organized by the Seoul office of the Hanns Seidel Foundation. A first book on Northeast Asian Security Cooperation, published by Springer New York, has already appeared in 2011.

Current Issues of the Political Economies of Japan and Korea: Comparative Research

Funded by the Bertelsmann Foundation, 2009–2011

Werner Pascha is contributing to two projects of the Bertelsmann Foundation that promise stringent comparisons between various countries, based on a rigorous and detailed analytical framework. As for Japan, the framework is given by the “Sustainable Governance Indicators” project. It analyzes and compares the need for reform in OECD member countries, as well as their ability to respond to current social and political challenges. The project is designed to create a comprehensive data pool on government related activities in the world’s developed, free-market democracies. With respect to South Korea, the framework is the “Comparative Crisis Management” project of Bertelsmann Foundation which intends to evaluate the capacities and abilities of the political management in selected developing and transition countries in response to the global financial and economic crisis. Reports have been published in 2010 and 2011.

Micro-based Evidence on Gift-giving and Bribery in Japan

Supported by JSPS, 2011–12, and Life-Risk Research Centre, Doshisha University, Kyoto, and Ryukoku University, Kyoto

The research is related to experimental and behavioural economics. It is about the attitude and behavior of Japanese subjects in situations of bribery. To do so, a simple game is used that has already been applied by other authors to German students: a student, acting as a “business person”, bribes a “civil servant”, who can either accept the bribe and give a contract to the business person, accept the bribe and give the contract to another, more efficient company, or not accept the bribe and report it to the authorities. Finally, the business person in the first two cases can accept the outcome or report the case to the authorities. Certain payouts are associated with the experiment. An important aspect of participant behaviour is the trust between the participants and the risks associated with it. This may depend on framing, and the “business person” can choose to undertake the experiment with the same payouts framing it either as a bribery exchange or as a gift exchange. The research interest is to see how the Japanese act in this game, possibly different from German students, and what influence the framing has. One expectation, for instance, is that the Japanese use the gift framing more often, because compared to Germans the expectation that gifts are not simply free of consequences but bear certain strategic expectations about a future pay-back may be more deeply associated with the Japanese culture. The experiment was carried out in the summer of 2011, and results are expected by early 2012.

Commissioned by the European Commission

The Chair for the “East Asian Economy/Japan and Korea” participates in a comparative study of electric vehicles. The Chair will investigate and assess the current market situation for electric vehicles in Japan and South Korea. In this context it will describe and assess the industrial situation, including components like batteries, look at new services emerging and at the role of public authorities. This project is part of a Multiple Framework Contract for the provision of consultancy services in the field of the Automotive Sector, awarded to the University of Duisburg-Essen (Centre for Automobile Management, Prof. Heike Proff) by the DG Enterprise and Industry of the European Commission.

Environmental Conflicts in Southeast Asia

Current research

In this research environmental conflicts are defined as conflicts in which environment or single natural elements (e.g. water, land) play a crucial role. That does not necessarily mean, that such conflicts are also caused by e.g. environmental degradation (although sometimes this might be the case). It is assumed that environmental conflicts, as conflicts in general, can only be understood and solved, when their (social, cultural, economic and political) context is considered properly. A basic hypothesis is that environment and natural elements, as a rule, are functioning as threat multipliers rather than single causes of conflicts. And they do so in very different ways. Due to the already noticeable, more so the predicted effects of climate change and a growing interest of financial investors for natural resources it is assumed, that environmental conflicts in Southeast Asia will increase in the future in terms of numbers as well as degree.

Spatial Aspects of Vietnamese-Chinese Links and Relations in Past and Present

Current research

Vietnam and China have a long history of political, socioeconomic and cultural influence and interference as well as competition. This is true until the present day. Space is a medium through which these relations work (e.g. borders, frontiers, transborder cultural spaces, territorial claims). And those relations also have a spatial impact. The research aims at clarifying the role of space in Sino-Vietnamese relations in past and present.

Comparative Gender Analysis of Livelihood Security Systems, Faces of Social Exclusion in Coordinated Market Economies

Principle Investigator, Mari Osawa, Institute of Social Sciences, University of Tokyo.

This international research project undertakes a matched comparative study of gender-based inequalities in the context of social policy and employment reforms in Japan, Germany, South Korea and Sweden, all cases of “coordination capitalism.”

This project is a sub-project of a newly awarded Excellence Cluster Gender Equality and Multicultural Conviviality at the Universities of Tohoku and Tokyo, 2009–2014. Activities in this past year included publications in Japanese and Korean, and the preparation of a special issue of Social Science Journal Japan.

WiMi-Care – Knowledge Transfer as Support for Influencing the Use of Micro-System Technologies in the Care Services SectorWissenstransfers für eine aktive Mitgestaltung des Pflegesektors durch Mikrosystem-technik 01FC08024-27 Förderschwerpunkt Technologie und Dienstleistung im demographischen Wandel, Themenbereich Neue Arbeits- und Organisationsstrukturen für eine nachhaltige Seniorenwirtschaft).

Developments in labor markets and demand for elderly care open an opportunity for innovations in the use of service robots in health services. Microelectronic innovations often proceed however, without consideration of the needs of either care workers or elderly persons.

The project “WiMi-Care” involves a close partnership with the Fraunhofer Institute for Manufacturing Engineering and Automation (IPA) in Stuttgart, the developer of the Care-O-Bot, a service robot aimed at the care services market, the Ludwigsburger MLR Systems GmbH für Materialfluss und Logistiksysteme, a developer of automated mobile systems, and Duisburg sociologists Diego Compagna (project direction), Thorsten Helbig and Stefan Derpmann. The aim of the Duisburg research is to highlight the importance of knowledge transfer between those who design service robots and the organizations and persons who use them. User design activities are supported by project partner User Interface Design (UID).

The research began in 2009 with an assessment of possible uses for robots and automated mobile systems at an elderly care facility. A highlight of activities in 2010 and 2011 was the user-oriented further development of two service robots, and a further pilot test of both in an elderly care facility. Activities in 2011 centered on the publication and presentation of research results, and the production of a video about the project. Project participants participated in a number of conferences and published an extensive set of working briefs, video, press reports and other details of which are available on the project website: www.wimi-care.de.

Focus Group on AAL and MST Technology at the User-Service Interface

At the request of the BMBF project administration, Karen Shire has been charged since 2009 with the coordinator of a “focus group” composed of eight project consortiums awarded funding within the BMBF research program Technology and Services in the Context of Demographic Changes. The aim of such BMBF “focus groups” is to generate inputs into policy-making and future BMBF research programs, in this case, in relation to micro-systems-technology and demographic change. In 2010–2011 the focus group invited experts in key areas of research activities. Prof. Dr. Dieter Otten, author of Die 50+ Studie (2008), presented his research on the lifestyles of the “young old” in Germany, and two legal experts from the Law Firm Noerr advised on the medical product regulations in Germany and the EU, and their possible effects on research and development activities in clinical settings. In 2011 the focus group worked on a joint publication, forthcoming from Gabler Press, and a final workshop planned for December 2011 in Berlin.

Risk and East Asia: An Anglo-German Research Training Program in Discipline-based East Asian Area Studies

In May 2008, following an on-side peer review in February, IN-EAST was awarded funding by the DFG to set up the Research Training Group, officially commencing in October 2009. The research intentions of the program are three-fold: (1) to contribute to social scientific and comparative theories of institutional change by studying how the responsibilities for governing and protecting against social, political and economic risks are shifting from states to markets, public to private bodies and from collectivities to individuals, (2) to study institutional change in a region of the world – East Asia – where institutional logics have played out historically in different ways, and (3) to integrate strong research methodological training with research and language competencies in East Asian research contexts. The innovation of the research programme lies in taking a risk perspective on institutional change, tying together specific disciplinary with a regional studies perspective, in an intra- and inter-regional research design. The sub-themes of the research programme examine the impact of four “large processes” of contemporary transformations on shifting risks in specific cases of institutional dynamics: marketisation, individualisation, decentralisation, and transnationalisation. The research training programme is an explicitly international collaboration with the UK center of excellence – the White Rose East Asian Centre – in cooperation with major centers of social scientific research in East Asia, the Faculty of Sociology and Population Studies at the Renmin University in Beijing, the Graduate Program in Global Studies, and the Institute of Social Sciences and Inter-faculty Initiative in Information Studies at the University of Tokyo in Japan. In 2010–2011 the group recruited its second and third cohort of doctoral fellows and welcomed new post-doctoral, senior scholars and guest researchers. www.risk-and-eastasia.de.

Participating social scientists from IN-EAST include Prof. Dr. Karen Shire, Speaker, Prof. Dr. Werner Pascha, Prof. Dr. Thomas Heberer, Prof. Dr. Markus Taube, Prof. i.R. Dr. Winfried Flüchter, Prof. Flemming Christiansen Ph.D., Prof. Kristin Surak Ph.D., Dr. Norifumi Kawai, Dr. Alexandra Sakaki, Dr. Kerstin Lukner, Dr. Chun-Yi Lee.

A report of activities during the first year of the Research Training Group 1613 Risk and East Asia are detailed in chapter 4 of this report.

The State-Business Nexus in China's Steel Industry – Chinese Market Distortions in Domestic and International Perspective

Commissioned by EUROFER – European Confederation of Iron and Steel Industries.

The project is designed to examine the overall interaction between state and market forces in the Chinese steel industry and highlight the specific state-business nexus in China's post central planning economy. This includes an analysis of the major policy programs designed to provide guidance to the steel industry and its stakeholders in management positions as well as government agencies at various levels. On the micro-level the study analyzes the specific policy tools and discretionary instruments by which Chinese government organizations are intervening in the micro-management of Chinese steel enterprises and direct industry development.

Consumer Behavior in China

In cooperation with THINK!DESK China Research & Consulting, University of Göttingen, National Bureau of Statistics

Ongoing joint autonomous project

The project aims at gaining a better understanding of China's consumers' brand preferences, shopping habits and other parameters of their consumer lives. It is based on face-to-face interviews in more than 1,000 households in various Chinese cities. In 2008/09 the focus of research has been put on the attitudes and actual buying behavior of Chinese consumers vis-à-vis fake products.

Relational Corruption in the PR China – Institutional Foundations and Impact on Economic Development and Growth

Autonomous project embedded in the initiative “The (Dys-)Functionality of Corruption in Changing Contemporary Societies” of the university's five main research areas (Profilschwerpunkte) “Change of Contemporary Societies”

The Chinese economy has gone through three decades of rapid economic growth, while at the same time experiencing a dramatic increase in the incidence and intensity of corruption. This dual development gives rise to a paradox, as standard economic theory understands corruption as being detrimental to economic development. Against this background the project deals with the specific institutional foundations and the politico-economic environment of corruption in contemporary China.

Markus TaubeThe Role of Openness in China's Post-Crisis Growth Strategy: Implications for the EU

Research Project funded by the East Asian Center at SGH Warsaw

Since the beginning of China's opening-up strategy, the economy of the EU is benefiting from China's opening-up strategy:

- Outsourcing parts and components production to China has contributed to keep European MNCs' global competitiveness.
- Entering the Chinese markets has created considerable growth of sales in industries such as automobile and machinery.
- Importing low-tech products from China has allowed European consumers to switch from high-price to lower price products.

The discussions about the negative effects – rising unemployment because of outsourcing as well as because of dumping – are still controversial.

In the context of this framework answers are sought to the question what impulses a new Chinese growth paradigm and a greater maturity of Chinese firms may exert on the Chinese context. The chair of East Asian Economics/China is focussing two specific topics: the development trajectory outlined in the 12th Five Year Plan, as well as the new Chinese outward looking strategy and the new patterns of Chinese outward FDI.

DFG RESEARCH TRAINING GROUP RISK AND EAST ASIA
DFG GRADUIERTEN-KOLLEG RISK AND EAST ASIA

The relevance of the topic of Risk for Contemporary East Asian Research was overshadowed by the re-ignition of territorial conflicts between China and Japan in September 2010 when a Chinese fishing boat and Japanese patrol collided in the East China Sea near the disputed Senkoku Island, and by the Great Tohoku Earthquake of March 11, 2011, when the tsunami and nuclear disasters unleashed by the earthquake launched Japan into its worst social and political crises since the end of WW II. On March 14, 2011 a new blog was launched by the research training group, to present short and timely analyses of unfolding events by members of the research training group (www.risk-and-eastasia.de). Individual entries have been viewed between 250 to 400 times within the eight months since the blog launch. Following the 3/11 triple disaster, the research training group extended the deadline for recruitment of new fellows to encourage project proposals addressing the link between natural, political and social risks in China and Japan. A number of the six new fellows selected to join the group in the fall of 2011 will take up these issues in their doctoral research projects.

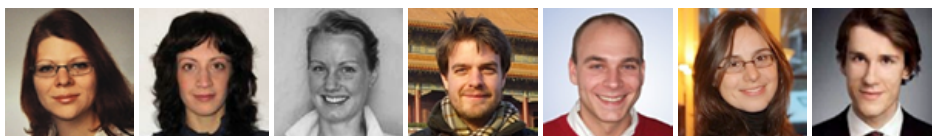

The sections below present the members, new and old, of the research training group, the course program, short summaries of the eleven research and training workshops and the progress of the 20 individual projects underway within the four sub-themes of the research program: marketization, individualization, decentralization and transnationalization.

People

The Research Training Group grew to 18 doctoral fellows (12 with stipends, 6 affiliates) and four post-doctoral fellows in 2010/2011. Three post-doctoral scholars began their work in the group in 2010/2011. Through university selection and recruitment, the group gained two new participating scientists, one in Sociology of Japan, one in Sociology of China. The University of Duisburg-Essen accepted our nomination for the University's Scientist in Residence, sponsored by the Sparkasse Essen, and we welcomed Prof. John Creighton Campbell as Visiting Professor to the group in 2011. Prof. Ulrike Schaede accepted our invitation for a Guest Professorship in Spring 2011. The research program is led by seven participating scientists: Prof. Flemming Christiansen, Ph.D. (Sociology/China), Prof. Dr. Winfried Flüchter (Geography/Japan), Prof. Dr. Thomas Heberer (Politics/China), Prof. Dr. Werner Pascha (Economics/Japan), Prof. Karen Shire, Ph.D. Speaker (Sociology/Japan), Prof. Kristin Surak, Ph.D. (Sociology/Japan), Prof. Dr. Markus Taube (Economics/China), and conducted in cooperation with the White Rose East Asia Centre at the Universities of Leeds and Sheffield in Britain.

Doctoral Fellows

Doctoral stipend awards were granted to five new fellows in October 2010. They were joined by affiliated fellows Susanne Löhr, a BMBF project funded doctoral fellow and Magnus Dau, a research associate of Politics in East Asia. In September 2011 these fellows travelled to East Asia to begin their field research. All doctoral fellows: Stephanie Bräuer (MA University of Leipzig), Iva Ognjanovic (MA University of Duisburg-Essen), Ann-Katrin Prior (Diplom University of Tübingen), Hans-Christian Schnack (MA Berlin Free University), Magnus Dau (MA University of Marburg), Susanne Löhr (MA University of Marburg), Claus Corves (Diplom University of Bonn).

Hans-Christian Schnack won the Erhard-Höpfner Study Award 2010 of the Berlin Scientific Society for his master thesis.

Ann-Kathrin Prior was selected to participate in the 4th Nobel Laureate Meeting at Lindau for Economics in August 2011. At this event 25 Nobel Prize winners, along with over 450 selected young scientists from around the world came together in the town Lindau at Lake Constance (Bodensee).

In 2011 stipends were awarded to five new fellows, and one affiliate was chosen: Stenya Melnikova (MA University of Duisburg-Essen), Vitali Heidt (Diplom University of Bonn), Hanno Jentzsch (MA Bochum Ruhr University), Mei Yu (MA Beijing Normal University), Alison Lamont (MA University of Leeds) and affiliate Martin Heinberg (Diplom University of Passau).

Postdoctoral Scholars

Two new post-doctoral appointments were made: Chun-Yi Lee (Ph.D. Nottingham, Post-Doc Leiden) and Dr. Alexandra Sakaki (Ph.D. University of Trier). All post-doc scholars: Dr. Norifumi Kawai (Ph.D. University of Duisburg-Essen), Dr. Chun-Yi Lee (Ph.D. University of Nottingham), Dr. Kerstin Lukner (Ph.D. University of Bonn), Dr. Alexandra Sakaki (Ph.D. University of Trier).

N. Kawai Ch.-Y. Lee K. Lukner A. Sakaki

Dr. Norifumi Kawai received a Lecturership of International Business in the Department of Business, Management and Economics at the University of Sussex at the completion of his two-year post-doc in the Research Training Group.

Dr. Alexandra Sakaki was nominated by the University of Duisburg-Essen for membership in the Junge Kolleg der Nordrhein-Westfälischen Akademie der Wissenschaften.

Dr. Alexandra Sakaki accepted a researcher position at the German Institute for International and Security Affairs, to begin in January 2012.

Dr. Kerstin Lukner began her post-doc in January 2010, after a parental leave of absence.

Dr. Kerstin Lukner and Dr. Alexandra Sakaki received a grant from the Alfried Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach-Stiftung for co-funding of an international conference on Japanese international crisis management capacities.

Dr. Chun-Yi Lee received a research grant from the Economic and Social Science Research Council, UK which she will begin in November 2011 at the University of Nottingham.

New Participating Scientists

Prof. Kristin Surak, Ph.D. was appointed Assistant Professorship for Comparative Sociology and Japan Studies at the Institute of Sociology in October 2010. She received her doctorate at the University of California Los Angeles (UCLA) in Sociology and held post-doctoral fellowships at the School of Oriental and Asian Studies (SOAS), University of London, and at the European University Institute, Florence. Her primary research and teaching interests lie in the sociology of international migration, culture, ethnicity, and nationalism. Her articles have appeared in the European Journal of Sociology, International Migration Review, Ethnic and Racial Studies, and the New Left Review. A book based on her doctoral thesis, Nation Work: Making Tea Japanese will be published by Stanford University Press in 2012. The book examines the relationship between cultural practices and national meanings by investigating how the tea ceremony is produced and sustained as distinctively Japanese. As a member of the Research Training Group, she is developing a project examining the relationship between states and private actors in managing labor migration policies in East Asia.

Prof. Flemming Christiansen Ph.D. was appointed Full Professor for Society and Politics in East Asia in July 2011. His chair is named Political Sociology of China. He received his doctorate at the University of Leiden. His previous positions include Professor for Chinese Studies at the University of Leeds and Director of the National Institute of Chinese Studies at the White Rose East Asia Centre and prior positions at the University of Manchester and University of Aalborg. He has researched broadly on China's rural development, overseas Chinese, labor, social class and social stratification. His main works include Chinese Politics and Society (authored with Rai 1996), Chinatown, Europe (2003), The Politics of Multiple Belonging (edited with Hedetoft, 2004) and the Encyclopedia of Modern China (edited with Pong et al. 2010). He is an editor of the Journal of Current Chinese Affairs.

Guest Professors

Prof. Dr. Ulrike Schaede, Professor at the School of International Relations and Business Studies, University of California San Diego, is an authority on Japanese business organization, strategy, and management. She has written extensively on the strengths of Japanese business organization. In the Research Forum of the Kolleg Prof. Schaede delivered a public lecture on about Japan's most profitable companies, a project she continued to work on while in Duisburg. She participated in two training workshops for doctoral fellows in June 2011, and supported the improvement of fellow's research designs. As a German national with an international career, she was also able to direct students in how to better formulate their research questions and presentations for an international audience. Her mantra: "explain to me why you are the person to do this project" resonated with the fellows. A number of the doctoral and post-doctoral fellows consulted individually with Prof. Schaede about their research projects.

Prof. John Creighton Campbell, Emeritus of the University of Michigan, Ann-Arbor, Department of Political Science, was awarded the “Scientist in Residence” of the University of Duisburg-Essen in 2011. Prof. Campbell’s research uncovers the public policy implications of demographic change. He has written extensively on government responses to population aging in Japan, and his recent major work involves comparisons of long-term care insurance policies in Japan, Germany, and other advanced industrial nations. His research on Japan has shown how the Japanese government is able to maintain a low-cost egalitarian system of health care, with particular advantages for coverage of an aging population. During the first part of Prof. Campbell’s residence in Duisburg he met individually with the doctoral and post-doctoral fellows about their research projects. He also participated in two training workshops for doctoral fellows, and contributed a great deal to improving their research designs.

Research Students

In 2010/11 eight Research Students were recruited from the MA and Diplom programs in East Asian Studies to join the research training group: Anna Shpakovskaya, Jutta Teuwsen, Thomas Yoshimura, Martin Rathmann, Armin Reinartz, Stenia Melnikova, Luxiao Cheng, Katja Restel. Research Students are assigned to assist the post-doctoral research activities, and carried out a number of important research tasks.

A. Shpakovskaya J. Teuwsen Th. Yoshimura M. Rathmann A. Reinartz St. Melnikova L. Cheng

Thomas Yoshimura received his Diplom degree in 2011 and is now working as Project Assistant at the Konrad Adenauer Foundation in Tokyo, Japan.

Martin Rathmann submitted his Diplom Thesis in 2011 and is now in Japan working as Coordinator for International Relations at the Prefecture of Tokushima, where he recently assisted in the visit of the German Federal President, Christian Wulff to Japan.

Armin Reinartz finished his course work for the Master of Contemporary East Asian Studies and is now studying advanced Chinese at Beijing University. He attended the September Seminar at Renmin University in September 2011.

Stenya Melnikova completed the Master of Contemporary East Asian Studies in 2011 and was accepted to join the DFG GK 1613 as a doctoral fellow, commencing in October 2011.

Course Program, Fall Term 2010/2011, Spring Term 2011

First year doctoral fellows are required to take two courses: the core theory seminar, co-taught by the participating scientists in the fall term, and the research methods course, co-taught by post-doctoral fellows and the participating scientists. In 2011 it was supplemented by a number of training workshops (see below).

In Fall Term 2010/2011 Prof. Karen Andersen Ph.D. (University of Nijmegen), a leading scholar of political institutionalism, whose work has covered comparative welfare and social policies, joined the Core Theory course to lecture on Institutionalism in Political Science. In Spring Term 2011 (as in 2010) two IN-EAST researchers, Sven Horak and Marcus Conlé, taught a unit on game theory in the Research Methods Course.

The program of the research forum in 2010/2011 included lectures by the following scholars:

Susanne Rühle (University of Frankfurt) and Dr. Tobias ten Brink (Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies in Cologne): Varieties of Capitalism and China (Nov. 3, 2010)

Prof. Dr. Christian Tagsold (University of Düsseldorf): A Field Study of Translation: Long-Term Care Insurance in Japan (Nov. 17, 2010)

Dr. Chun-Yi Lee (GRK 1613): Taiwanese Business or Chinese Security Asset (Jan. 19, 2011)

Prof. Dr. Björn Alpermann (University of Würzburg): Social Activism in China: Between Embeddedness and Marginalization (Jan. 26, 2011)

Prof. Kaori Hayashi, Ph.D. (University of Tokyo): Using Media in Social Scientific Analysis about East Asia (April 11, 2011)

Prof. Keping Yu (Peking University): Democracy in China: Opportunity or Challenge? (May 2, 2011, in cooperation with the Confucius Institute Metropolis Ruhr)

Prof. Stephen Frenkel, Ph.D. (Australian Graduate School of Management, Sydney): Institutional Conditions for Organizing Decent Work in Global Production Networks in China (May 4, 2011)

Prof. Dr. Dorothea Kübler (WZB Berlin and TU Berlin): Experimental Practices in Economics: Performativity and the Creation of Phenomena (May 10, 2011)

Prof. Tao Lei (Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, Beijing): The Change of the National People's Congress Election in the last 60 years (May 24, 2011)

Prof. Jianxing Yu (Zhejiang University, Hangzhou): The Behavioral Logic of Chinese Local Government (June 7, 2011)

Prof. Dr. Ulrike Schaede (University of California San Diego): Show Me the Money: Japan's Most Profitable Companies in the 2000s

Research Cooperation

In 2010/2011 the Research Training Group established the following new cooperation agreements and intentions to cooperation:

- Graduate Program in Global Studies, Sophia University (Tokyo)
- East Asian Studies, Berlin Free University
- Käte Hamburger Kolleg: Political Cultures of World Society

In 2010/2011 a number of events were co-organized with our established partners:

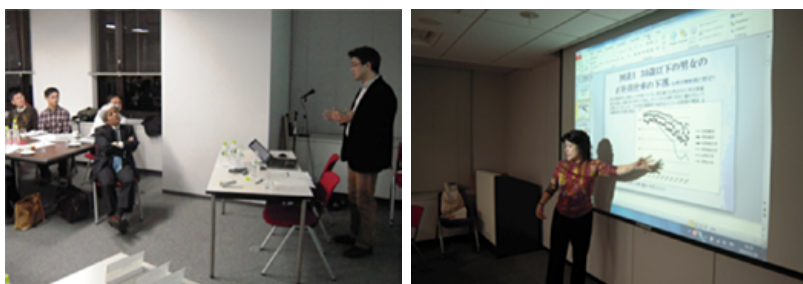

- Renmin University, Beijing (September Seminar 2011), and hosting of seven doctoral fellows during their field research in 2010 and 2011.
- German Institute of Japan Studies (DIJ) in Tokyo (New Employment Risks Workshop in November 2010)
- Center for Advanced Studies in the Humanities (KWI, Essen) (Gender Workshop in March 2011)
- University of Tokyo, Institute of Social Sciences and Global Center of Excellence on Gender Equality and Multicultural Conviviality (Gender Workshop in March 2011 and appointment of one doctoral fellow as visiting research in 2010/2011).
- University of Tokyo, Inter-university Institute of Information Studies (Prof. Kaori Hayashi joined the Research Forum in April 2011 in Duisburg)
- Bonn Laboratory for Experimental Economics (Experimental Economics Training in June 2011, Cheng-du Workshop on Experiments in China, July 2011, linking us with their partner at Szechuan University in Chengdu)
- White Rose East Asia Centre (Participation in the Workshop "Varieties of Capitalism Revisited")

Research and Training Workshops, October 2010 – September 2011

In the second year of its program the Research Training Group 1613 (co-)organized four research workshops and organized seven additional training workshops:

New Employment Risks in East Asia – Political and Social Consequences of Non-Standard Employment Expansion, German Institute of Japan Studies in Tokyo, Nov. 26–27, 2010

The workshop, co-organised with the German Institute of Japan Studies in Tokyo, Business Studies Group, gathered experts on the social and political risks associated with the expansion of non-regular employment from China, Taiwan, Japan and South Korea. The contributions to the workshop covered the challenges for existing systems of social security (e.g., many non-regulars do not meet eligibility criteria due to the nature of their employment), the lack of chances such employment forms provide for career and family formation, especially among youth and migrant workers, and the political risks associated with the political preferences of workers who are excluded from benefits and middle-class lifestyles. Participants included Prof. Jun Imai, Tohoku University, Sendai (a former post-doc of the research training group) and Prof. Nobuko Nagase, Ochanomizu University, Tokyo, a leading Japanese labor economist (both pictured below, see chapter 7 in this report for a full list of participants).

Experimental Perspectives on Behavioral Economics and Culture in East Asia, Duisburg, March 3, 2011

This workshop was devoted to discussing the experimental perspective on behavioral economics and culture in East Asia, and co-sponsored by the Research Training Group, with IN-EAST researcher Sven Horak. The analysis of culture as a factor for systematic decision making at the level of individuals is still far from gaining a foothold in economic theory. Classic economic models are not flexible enough to discuss the factor culture in human behavior. The workshop focused on how an experimental approach can contribute to exploring cultural parameters, their changing dynamics and their influence on economics.

Gender & Social Policy Challenges in Japan, East Asia and Europe, Center for Advanced Studies in the Humanities (KWI, Essen), Essen, March 7, 2011

The workshop brought together doctoral candidates, young post-doctoral scholars and established experts engaged in the study of contemporary institutional changes in East Asian societies from a gender perspective, with the aim of promoting the development of research about social policy reforms and the emergence of new social risks in East Asian and European comparative perspectives, and providing young gender researchers with support from senior gender scholars. The workshop opened with a keynote address by Prof. Mari Osawa, University of Tokyo. Following the keynote address, doctoral candidates and young scholars from the Global Center of Excellence “Gender Equality”, the Research Training Group 1613, the Bochum Ruhr University and the Düsseldorf Heinrich Heine University presented their research and received comments from participating experts. The workshop concluded with a mentoring dinner aimed at promoting the integration of young female scholars into the international East Asian scientific community.

Methods of Studying Risk in East Asia and Inter-cultural Contexts, EastAsiaNet Spring Workshop 2011, University of Duisburg-Essen, April 14–16, 2011

In Spring 2011 the annual conference of the Network of European Research Schools in Contemporary East Asian Studies (EastAsiaNet), hosted by the Institute of East Asian Studies, was co-organised by the “Risk and East Asia Group”. The workshop, attended by leading East Asian scholars from European Universities in the UK, Austria, France, Denmark, Italy, Spain, Sweden, Portugal and the Czech Republic focused on methods for studying risk in an East Asian and intercultural context. Presentations from the Research Training Group included post-doctoral fellows Dr. Norifumi Kawai and Dr. Chun-Yi Lee, as well as a number of the professors in the group.

Training workshops:

Preliminary Results Workshop, University of Duisburg-Essen, June 24, 2011

The Preliminary Results Workshop is a milestone in the qualification program of the research training program and operated jointly with the White Rose East Asia Centre. The first cohort of PhD fellows presented the preliminary results of field research completed over the past year in East Asia to an audience including all the participating scientists, all fellows, post-docs, research students and guest professors to the Research Training Group. Two additional guests, Prof. Richard L. Edmonds, Center for East Asian Studies, University of Chicago and Prof. Jianxing Yu, College of Public Administration, Zhejiang University, Hangzhou joined the workshop and commented on the presentations for five doctoral fellows who had completed their field research. This year, Prof. Flemming Christiansen from the White Rose East Asia Centre also joined the workshop.

Proposal Presentation Workshop, University of Duisburg-Essen, June 27–28, 2011

The Proposal Presentation Workshop is the first milestone in the training program, marking the progression from the in-house course program on into a phase of independent field research in East Asia. Six fellows presented their research designs in June 2011 to the full assembly of the research training group. This year four guest professors joined in giving fellows advice on their proposed research.

Experimental Economics and Intercultural Research, University of Duisburg-Essen, June 22–23, 2011

The workshop on „Experimental Economics and Intercultural Research“ led by Prof. Jeannette Brosig, Director of the Essen Laboratory for Experimental Economics, University of Duisburg-Essen, and Dr. Heike Hennig-Schmidt, Bonn Laboratory for Experimental Economics, is now an annual event, and provides in-class training in the design, programming and implementation of experimental research designs. Under the direction of Prof. Brosig and Dr. Hennig-Schmidt doctoral fellows learned the basics of experimental research, with a special focus on experiments designed to measure cross-cultural differences in individual behavior and decision-making. Doctoral fellows presented their preliminary experimental designs, and received comments and advice, also supported by Prof. Dr. Markus Taube.

Participation and Popular Resistance in Rural China, University of Duisburg-Essen, July 8, 2011

This workshop was a joint event of the Research Network Governance in China (BMBF) and the Research Training Group, and led by Prof. Lianjiang Li, Professor at the Department of Government and Public Administration, Chinese University of Hong Kong, a leading international expert on political participation and social movements in China. Doctoral and post-doctoral fellows discussed Prof. Li's research with him, and received advice on their proposal research in preparation for their field research in China.

Presenting Academic Work in Chinese, University of Duisburg-Essen, July 12–13, 2011

In order to prepare students for the presentation of their topic in China at the September Seminar in 2011, the DFG GK 1613 organized a special two-day-training at the request of the fellows, on how to present a research topic in Chinese. In his guest lecture, Prof. Dr. Jinyang Zhu from the University of Applied Science, Constance gave a general introduction into terms and formalities of Chinese language presentations. In the course of the two-day-workshop students had the chance to receive one-on-one coaching in presenting their specific topic in Chinese.

September Seminar China, Renmin University, Beijing, Sept. 5–9, 2011

The September Seminar is a major milestone in the training program of the Research Training Group. In September 2011 the workshop took place for the second time, under the direction of Prof. Thomas Heberer and Dr. Chun-Yi Lee. Doctoral fellows, at the end of their first year in the training program, attend the seminar at the Renmin University in Beijing, to prepare for the field research they will conduct in China during the second year of their fellowship. In September 2011, six doctoral fellows joined the program, presented their research designs in Chinese, and received comments from a Chinese mentor assigned specifically to their project. Training activities included visits to the the library of the Renmin

University and the National Library in Renmin. This year, three Chinese PhD students from the Renmin School of Sociology and Population Studies joined the program, and presented their doctoral research topics, receiving comments from University of Duisburg-Essen scholars and fellows.

Prof. Xing Teng presented his research on minority education in China, prior to advising a project by Fellow Hans-Christian Schnack on this topic

Prof. Liu Shangxi provided mentorship for the research proposed by Fellow Susanne Löhner

Prof. Li Lulu, Prof. Thomas Heberer and Prof. Xianyang Yu at the Welcome Dinner organized by Renmin University for the September Seminar participants

Fellow Magnus Dau received comments on his project from Prof. Wei Da

Ann-Kathrin Prior received comments from Prof. Jiujie Ma

Experimental Methods and Research in China, Chengdu University, China, Sept. 18–24, 2011

The workshop, organized jointly with the Laboratory for Experimental Economics at Bonn University (Bonn EconLab) and in cooperation with Prof. Dr. Li Zhuyu of the Sichuan University in Chengdu, provided economics fellows a chance to conduct experiments as part of their doctoral research, under the close supervision of cooperation partner Dr. Heike Hennig-Schmidt, BonnEconLab. Two doctoral fellows, Sunkung Choi and Ann-Kathrin Prior, and Prof. Dr. Markus Taube were present to provide support and advice.

Research Program

With the recruitment of the third cohort of doctoral fellows and the post-doctoral and guest-professor programs in full-swing, the Research Training Group worked primarily on the development of its research program. The activities are reported here by sub-theme of the research program.

Post-doctoral fellows received grants from the Economic and Social Science Research Council (UK) and the Alfried Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach-Stiftung for their research.

Doctoral and Post-doctoral fellows presented their research at major international conferences: Association for Asian Studies in Honolulu, the European Association for Japanese Studies in Tallinn, the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Management in Reykjavík, and the European Conference on Agricultural and Rural Development in China in Aarhus.

Research presentations were also invited by the Stockholm School of Economics, the University of Nagoya, The University of Tokyo, the School of Oriental and African Studies in London, the London School of Economics and the American Institute for Contemporary German Studies, Baltimore. A doctoral fellow in Economics was chosen to participate in the Nobel Laureate Meeting in Lindau for Economics.

Publication highlights include the completion of a book by Dr. Chun-Yi Lee published by Routledge Press, and a book under contract by Dr. Alexandra Sakaki with Routledge Press, ten individual English language book chapters or journal articles in addition to several German language publications.

Three post-doctoral scholars received appointments to follow their post-doctoral positions in the Research Training Group: Dr. Norifumi Kawai received a lecturer post in International Business at the Department of Business, Management and Economics, University of Sussex. He was short-listed for lectureships at two other UK business schools. Dr. Alexandra Sakaki received a position as Researcher at the German Institute for International and Security Affairs, a major German think-tank, where she will advise on Japanese and East Asian security issues. Dr. Chun-Yi Lee will join the University of Nottingham as Researcher to lead her project with funding from the UK Economic and Social Science Research Council (ESRC).

Sub-Theme Marketisation

The strengthening of market mechanisms as the predominant means to organize the economic interaction between social actors is one of the strongest processes of contemporary global change. In its most visible form ‘marketization’ manifests itself in the transformation processes in which centrally planned economies like China are reorganizing themselves into market-based economies. Marketization covers the transition to a market economy (China) as well as the further liberalization of established market economies in the East Asian region (Japan, South Korea), but in our emphasis, especially the role of re-regulation and new institutions in abating the social and economic risks of market-oriented transformations.

Sunkung Choi – Effects of Experiencing Economic Crisis on Risk Perception and Risk Attitudes; A Case from South Korea. The purpose of this doctoral project, now in its second year, is to figure out the effect of experience of economic crisis on risk perception and risk attitudes and, especially, this study introduces the cases of South Korea. To answer the research questions the study applies both theoretical and empirical approaches, including experimental methods. Preliminary results of research conducted in South Korea and China during 2010 and 2011 reveal that South Koreans are extremely risk adverse in relation to labor market issues, but accept risk-taking in investment activities. The results suggest inefficient labor allocation in job markets and unstable financial structure of households.

Mei Yu – Corporate Social Responsibility and Business-NGO Partnership in Poverty Alleviation: A Case Study of Microfinance Project of Company A in China. This doctoral project is new to the Research Group in October 2011. Based on the analytical framework of CSR ‘development case’ vs. ‘business case’, and following the thread of CSR initiatives in poverty alleviation, the proposed research will explore the implementation mechanisms of microfinancing projects in concrete empirical cases of transnational corporations in China, in order to better understand mechanisms of implementation in the Chinese context.

René Trappel – Agrarian Change in Rural China: Commodification of Collective Land. In its second year, this doctoral project is looking at the commodification of collective land in rural China from the perspective of agrarian change. In the second year, extensive fieldwork was completed in China, including more than fifty interviews, the collection and analysis of numerous internal documents and newspaper articles. The findings so far suggest a close connection between peasant class disintegration, legal institutions and activities of local governments leading to an emerging secondary market for collective land with clear winners and losers.

Stenya Melnikova – Business Risk in the Chinese Energy Sector. The risk for the business environment of institutional changes in the Chinese energy industry is the subject of this new doctoral project, which will include case studies of oil corporations.

Iva Ognjanovic – Human Capital Management in China: Two Contrasting Cases. Drawing on institutional theory, this doctoral project aims to explain the dynamic interplay between the local institutional environment, the implementation of high performance work system, and the willingness of highly skilled Chinese employees to spend a longer time of their career in their firm. By adopting a qualitative case study approach, the research, which will begin in October 2011, seeks to gain a thorough, context-embedded understanding of the extent to which a German and a Chinese manufacturing firm can introduce such a management system, and how Chinese employees respond to it.

Ann-Kathrin Prior – Risk Management and Institutional Change in China's Rural Financial Market. The overarching aim of this doctoral project is the exploration and evaluation of the factors that determine the capital allocation process in rural China by applying a micro-economic perspective investigating and analyzing the variety of financial intermediaries in the countryside and the criteria on which they make lending decisions given their conflicting roles. Initial experiments were conducted in advance of field research in July 2011 in China.

Dr. Chun-Yi Lee – Globalisation, National Transformation and Workers' Rights: An Analysis of Chinese Labour within the Global Economy. The aim of this post-doctoral project is to study the role of Chinese labour in global economic structures at three levels: 1. What is the new Chinese production structure including its integration into the international division of labour? 2. What kind of civil society organisations have emerged at the form of state level in the defence of workers' interests? 3. To what extent has Chinese labour been integrated into the international working class organisations and been able to improve the conditions of Chinese workers through this route? The pilot research fieldwork in Guangzhou and Shenzhen from 6 to 25 August 2011 involved visits to labour NGOs in Shenzhen, local officials at street office level in Shenzhen and finally the Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou. In 2011 funding was received from the Economic and Social Science Research Council of Britain, for a period of three years, and field research in China will begin in late 2011.

Sub-Theme Individualisation

Individualization involve shifts from public to private in the field of social risks and the privatization of economic risks, especially employment risks, to individuals, but also the flip-side of the development of new capacities for individual responsibility and self-actualization, not least of all evident in changing family and gender relations and value shifts.

Chih-Chieh Wang – Labor Market Institutions and Social and Economic Risk-Shifting in Taiwan. This doctoral project at the end of its second year investigates labor market institutions in Taiwan after 2000 and how relevant socio-economic risks borne by worker and employer shift between each other, with a focus on nonstandard employment which specifically refers to part-time and fixed-term work, and labor contracting and dispatching. During 2010 and 2011 a nation-wide representative survey was designed and implemented in Taiwan, in cooperation with Prof. Jyh-er Roger Ko of the National Taiwan University, Taipei. Preliminary analyses show that employers use nonstandard employment to cope with business fluctuation and pay nonstandard workers notably less than full-time regular workers in terms of hourly wage and benefits, which overall implies that nonstandard employment is a mechanism with which employers shift their business risk to workers.

Vitali Heidt – Challenges for Rural Japan – Demographic and Institutional Change and Arising Risks for Life Courses of the Elderly. By examining the relation of altered life courses to possible risks this new doctoral project aims to take a look at the social structure in rural Japan and how institutional changes in contemporary Japan affect the life courses of elder citizens.

Stephanie Bräuer – Chinese Women in Their Way to Become Citizen. The aim of the project is to research the evolving citizenship of Chinese women through their contact with different types of activism. Fieldwork is now beginning, based on participant observation and in-depth interviews at several NGOs concerned with women's issues in China.

Alison Lamont – Natural Disasters and Their Transformative Affects on China's Political System. This new doctoral project seeks to explore how Chinese political systems and institutions adapt and transform to protect political and societal interests against the extreme and unpredictable risks posed by natural disasters.

Hanno Jentsch – A Risk Perspective Analysis of Institutional Change in Japan's Agricultural Support and Protection Regime. The research proposed in this new doctoral project will link the ongoing theoretical debate on institutional change and agency with the concrete example of the incrementally changing agricultural support and protection regime in Japan, and will include an analysis of the influence of the triple disaster 3/11.

Sub-Theme Decentralization

The Research of the DFG GK 1613 addresses two senses of decentralization: decentralization in the sense of shifting responsibilities and accountabilities from the upper to the lower political levels and the dispersion of central political authority, but also from "the bottom up" in reference to chances for participation and the impact on local autonomy and sustainability in local regions.

Armin Müller – Dynamics of Institutional Change in Rural China's Health Reforms. This doctoral project aims at understanding China's rural healthcare reforms of the past decade in the institutional context of local governance. Preliminary results from fieldwork conducted over the past year point to increasing homogeneity and parallels in strategic local action despite the still extreme decentralization of China's rural healthcare system.

Susanne Löhr – Rural Government in the Field of Forces between 'City Managing County', 'Expanding the Powers of Strong Counties' and 'Province Managing County': An analysis of the Function and Position of Counties in the Chinese Policy, Cases from Zhejiang and Hubei. This dissertation project sheds light on intergovernmental relations between the middle tiers of government in China (province–prefecture–county) and focuses on changes after the reform of direct management of counties by provinces (sheng guan xian). A comparison of cases in two provinces will clarify the reform implications for inter-governmental power relations and the influence on local public service provision.

Hans-Christian Schnack – Local Educational Policy for Minorities in China: Shaping Language Tuition in Xishuangbanna. Aiming at a deeper understanding of how political inputs shape institutional changes in Chinese schools, this research project investigates into the methods and preferences of local political actors to shape language tuition for ethnic minorities in public schools in the prefecture of Xishuangbanna in Southwest China, Yunnan province. In order to analyze the local conditions of and perspectives towards minority language education, semi-structured expert interviews are currently conducted and insights into school case studies are gathered by participatory research at several schools in Xishuangbanna. The findings will be analyzed against the background of decentralization of educational and minority policy in China.

Sub-Theme Transnationalization

Transnationalisation moves toward the supranational level of institutional change, both deregulatory in relation to the internationalisation of capital markets, and new regulatory in respect to new standards and protections, for example, for consumers, for equal opportunities of women or migrants rights. Here the global role of East Asia and the integration of China and Japan into, as well as their impact on, international regimes builds one dimension of this process of institutional change. Another dimension addresses how East Asia itself is perceived as a risk from a European perspective.

Magnus Dau – The Perception and Representation of China's Public Diplomacy Instruments in the US Media. The perception of Chinese public diplomacy instruments in the US media and the factors shaping their representation in terms of awareness, credibility and effectiveness are the subject of this doctoral project. Combining quantitative and qualitative content analysis techniques the study uses a longitudinal design drawing on US newswire articles referencing Chinese Public Diplomacy instruments since the early 2000s.

Melanie Wacker – Constructing Risks, Taking Responsibilities – Human Security and Japan’s Ban on Landmines and Cluster Munitions. This doctoral project examines how human security-related policies are negotiated and implemented in Japan. The project hypothesizes that responsibilities for securing against human security risks are shifted from the state to non-state actors, with non-governmental organizations playing a strong role in both policy-making and implementation. Research is conducted by the triangulation of documentary analysis and qualitative interviews and focuses on the sub-field of disarmament of conventional weapons – landmines and cluster munitions – as an area where notions of national and human security collide. Preliminary research conducted in 2010–2011 suggests that non-state actors play an important role in implementation of human security-related policy which the state cannot fulfill or is not willing to fulfill, though non-state actors continue to rely heavily on the state for funding and support.

Dr. Alexandra Sakaki – The Assessment and Management of Risk in Japan’s Maritime Security Policy. This post-doctoral project investigates Japan’s strategy in dealing with various threats and risks regarding global maritime security, which is vitally important due to the country’s status as an island nation dependent on international trade.

Dr. Norifumi Kawai – Japanese Multinationals in Europe and East Asia. This post-doctoral research explores the impact of managerial personal networks on the competitive position of multinational corporations located in emerging markets such as China. On-going research also addresses the moderating effect of environmental dynamics on the relationship between organizational structure and subsidiary performance, the impacts of market and non-market forces on MNCs’ location decisions and the antecedents and consequences of corporate political strategies.

Dr. Kerstin Lukner – The Governance of Pandemic Risks in East Asia. This post-doctoral research project undertakes a comparative study of pandemic risk governance in China and Japan. It focuses on the questions of how pandemic risks (avian influenza, swine flu) are perceived in China and Japan and of how these governments have been reacting to the pandemic risk challenge.

Ling He Simulation: Managing Change in China

July 8, 2011 at the Confucius Institute Metropolis Ruhr, Duisburg

Ling He Simulation is an advanced multimedia tool for prospective managers who want to work in China or with Chinese Companies. This simulation offers you the opportunity to learn more about implementing organizational change in current Chinese business. You have to convince a management team of 24 members to adapt the corporate Performance Management System (PMS), but your assignment has been limited. During six month (120 workdays) your tasks will be to gather information about the management team of the company. Further to introduce different change management initiatives and to observe your progress in helping the members of the management team to move through the phases of "Awareness", "Interest", "Trial" and finally "Adaption". Lecturer: Dr. Anja Senz and Eva Nell.

14th Duisburg East Asia Day 14. Duisburger Ostasientag

Beim 14. Ostasientag wurde das Thema „Deutsche an die Front? Neuere Tendenzen in der Personalpolitik ausländischer Firmen und Organisationen in Ostasien“ auf einer Podiumsdiskussion behandelt. In den 1980er Jahren war die Welt noch einfach – auch wenn sie damals schon als globalisiert galt: Deutsche Firmen und andere Einrichtungen, die sich in Ostasien engagieren wollten, brauchten vertrauenswürdige Mitarbeiter, um die dortigen Aktivitäten aufzubauen. Oft waren das deutsche bzw. eigene Entsendekräfte oder – in der neuen Welt-sprache – Expatriates. Entsprechend wurden auch Studienprogramme an den Hochschulen gestaltet, um diesen Bedarf zu bedienen. Heute ist die Welt komplexer geworden. Auch Mitarbeiter aus den Gastländern können verlässliche Stützen sein, oft international ausgebildet, durch Auslandsaufenthalte in der Organisationskultur der Muttereinrichtung versiert – und häufig sogar noch billiger. Internationale Aufgaben können „virtuell“ bearbeitet werden, vom Schreibtisch im Heimatland aus, mit Videokonferenzen und gelegentlichen Besuchen, vielleicht auch von einer regionalen Schnittstelle, tausende Kilometer von Gast- wie Heimatland entfernt. Berufseinstiege können unterschiedliche Formen annehmen, etwa über Praktika zuhause oder „vor Ort“.

Diesen Entwicklungen und ihren Konsequenzen ging die Podiumsdiskussion nach. Strategische Personalkonzepte von Unternehmen und international tätigen Einrichtungen standen auf dem Prüfstand, aber auch Ausbildungskonzepte für Studiengänge wie die Ostasienwissenschaften – und nicht zuletzt müssen sich auch Studierende und Berufseinsteiger immer wieder neu orientieren.

Es diskutierten: Inga Buchholz, Gesellschaft für Technische Zusammenarbeit, Julia Hollmann, Geschäftsführerin Deutsch-Japanischer Wirtschaftskreis, Vorsitzende KOPRA e.V., Dirk Petzold, Vorsitzender Alumni und Freunde der Duisburger Ostasienstudien AlFreDO e.V., Jan Schneemann, PricewaterhouseCoopers und Vorstand der Sprache und Praxis Japan Alumni im Deutsch-Japanischen Wirtschaftskreis. Gesprächsleitung hatte Werner Pascha, IN-EAST. Prof. Dr. Alf Kimms, Dekan der Mercator School of Management, Universität Duisburg-Essen, und Ralf J. Meurer, Geschäftsführer der Gesellschaft für Wirtschaftsförderung Duisburg (GfW), sprachen die Grußworte.

The Struggle for Meaning – Nature & Culture in Techno- & Life Sciences

Symposium im Rahmen des Residenzprogramms Scholars in Residence – eine Kooperation zwischen dem Kulturwissenschaftlichen Institut Essen (KWI) und dem Goethe-Institut.

Organisation: Diego Compagna

Within Science and Technology Studies (STS) the shifting meaning of concepts like ‘nature’ and ‘culture’ is a crucial topic. The concepts of nature and culture are in multiple ways at stake: On the one hand due to reconfiguration processes of their ‘boarders’ through techno- and life sciences’ developments and insights as well as the co-constructing dynamics between social and scientific activities. On the other hand, the interlinked meanings of nature and culture appear more or less as critical demarcations of the techno- and life sciences research activities. The wide diagnosis range of the shift of these interlinked concepts goes from the notion of ‘collapsing back upon itself’ to a ‘simple sliding’ that provides a redefinition or that provokes a reconfiguration (mostly with an emphasis on power and inequality related bargaining processes). The aim of the symposium is to discuss current positions in Philosophy, Sociology and STS, centered on the topics of Nanotechnology and Genetics (including Genomic and Epigenetic).

Speakers:

Diego Compagna (Scholar in Residence, Institut für Soziologie, Universität Duisburg-Essen)

Dr. Ute Kalender (Södertörn University College Stockholm und Institute for Advanced Studies on Science, Technology and Society, Graz)

Dr. Andrea zur Nieden (Institut für Geschichte der Medizin, Universität Düsseldorf)

Institutionen in der Entwicklung Ostasiens. Der Beitrag der experimentellen Ökonomie

Der Workshop fand zum fünften Mal in Kooperation mit der Evangelischen Akademie Tutzing statt, organisiert von Werner Pascha, Cornelia Storz und Markus Taube. In diesem Jahr stand die experimentelle Ökonomie als vergleichsweise junge wirtschaftswissenschaftliche Disziplin im Zentrum des Interesses. Indem sie nach den grundlegenden Verhaltenskalkülen individueller Akteure fragt, öffnet die experimentelle Ökonomie eine neue Perspektive auf die fundamentalen Parameter der Entstehung und Entwicklung von Institutionen und gestattet zudem noch interkulturelle Vergleiche institutioneller Ordnung. Im Rahmen der Erörterung verschiedenster Bereiche zwischenmenschlicher Interaktion soll auf dem Workshop ein Schlaglicht auf besondere Charakteristika und kulturelle Prägungen der institutionellen Entwicklung in Ostasien geworfen werden.

Der Workshop ist in die Rahmentagung der Evangelischen Akademie „Governance – Verteilung – Stabilisierung. Makroökonomik als theoretische und politische Herausforderung“ eingebettet.

3. IN-EAST Summer School

Zum dritten Mal führte das IN-EAST in Zusammenarbeit mit und gefördert durch das Konfuzius-Institut Metropole Ruhr (Duisburg) eine Summer School für interessierte Schüler der gymnasialen Oberstufe durch. Während der fünf Aktionstage konnten 40 Schülerinnen und Schüler aus ganz Deutschland Einblicke in ein Studium der Ostasienwissenschaften an der Universität Duisburg-Essen gewinnen. Sie absolvierten erste Unterrichtseinheiten in der japanischen und chinesischen Sprache und wurden in eigens durchgeführten Seminaren von auf Ostasien spezialisierten Professorinnen und Professoren zu Diskussionen über politische, ökonomische und sozialwissenschaftliche Aspekte Ostasiens angeregt.

Die Gymnasiasten lernten jedoch nicht nur den universitären Alltag mit all seinen Herausforderungen kennen. Die aktive Teilnahme an Taiji-Übungen zwischen den Unterrichtseinheiten, durchgeführt von einer Mitarbeiterin des Konfuzius-Instituts, sorgten ebenso für Ausgleich wie die diversen Freizeitaktivitäten, die zur Erkundung des Standortes Duisburg und Umgebung organisiert wurden. Auf dem Programm standen z. B. eine Fackelführung im Landschaftspark Nord, Duisburg, sowie ein Besuch des Museums der Langen Foundation, Neuss (gestaltet von dem japanischen Architekten Tadao Ando). In Düsseldorf wurden der Japanische Garten und der Japanische Distrikt besucht. Auf dem Sommerfest des IN-EAST erhielten die Summer School-Teilnehmerinnen und Teilnehmer darüber hinaus die Gelegenheit zu einem ausgiebigen Austausch mit Dozentinnen und Dozenten sowie Studierenden des Fachs.

LIBRARY REPORT
BIBLIOTHEKSBERICHT

The library of the Institute of East Asian Studies is integrated as East Asia collection in the University Library, and therefore applies its regulations for use, acquisition policy and budget requirements of the university library.

The library collections reflect the contemporary relevance and interdisciplinary nature of East Asian Studies. The main collection areas are politics, society, economy, geography, modern history, culture and the modern languages of the regions of China and Japan. At present, the East Asian collection holds over 30,000 monographs and 200 periodicals.

The total holdings of the East Asia collection are recorded in the electronic cataloging network of University Libraries of North Rhine-Westphalia and can be retrieved from the OPAC of the University Library.

The parallel cataloging of Japanese monographs in NACSIS-CAT (Japanese Union Catalogue), hosted by the National Institute of Information in Japan, has been continued, using the original characters. With the help of the Chinese and Japanese characters, approximately 4,500 of our Japanese titles can be found in Webcat (<http://webcat.nii.ac.jp>), and also in the European Union Catalogue of Japanese Books (<http://www.niicat.eu>).

The University Library has a number of subject-oriented databases. Academic staff and students may access them via PC.

The library of the IN-EAST is also working with various international and national libraries through which both the staff and the students have opportunities to use the shared licensed databases directly from Asia and delivery of journal articles as needed.

Many Chinese articles and texts can be downloaded. Concerning Japanese articles, the institute has completed in the previous reporting period an agreement with the National Diet Library in Japan, so that you can order on demand journal articles in Japan. Since the National Diet Library has been building its collections mainly by the legal deposit of Japanese publications (Legal Deposit System), this cooperation is most valuable for our research.

At this point we would like to thank the Nippon Foundation for their generous donation of books.

The permanent support of the Confucius Institute Metropolis Ruhr keeps the Chinese section of the library up-to-date, this especially applies to Chinese-German and Chinese-English dictionaries as well as classical Chinese literature.

Duisburg Working Papers on East Asian Studies
Duisburger Arbeitspapiere Ostasienwissenschaften

Since July 1995 the Institute has published its own working paper series, the so-called “Green Series” (Grüne Reihe), a limited number of which are available free of charge. Most papers in the series can be accessed via Internet, they are listed on the IN-EAST website at <http://www.in-east.de> → Publications.

Between October 2010 and September 2011 the following papers were published.

- No. 87 / 2010 Marcus Conlé:
Health Biotechnology in China: National, Regional, and Sectoral Dimensions
- No. 88 / 2011 Peter Thomas in der Heiden:
