

Your Acknowledgement Matters!

If you publish data recorded on one of our instruments please acknowledge the ICCE.

We need a good publication record
- as much as you do - to apply for research grants and funding for new equipment.

In case of substantial scientific contributions, the respective ICCE member needs to be listed as a co-author on the publication. Moreover, the acknowledgement of the publication MUST include a reference to the corresponding funding number given with the instrument name (check the respective equipment page).

Pay attention to the spelling of the ZMB in the affiliations. It should be uniformly named Center of Medical Biotechnology. Currently, spellings such as “Centre” or “Center for” are very common.

Please contact Nina and Johannes before you submit a publication.
They will be happy to help.
